- 5 agreed to the following key principles to ensure a just and effective transition:
 - 5.1 taking a transparent and participative approach to climate change policy, with wide community, business and Māori engagement and consultation (acting consistently with the principles of the Treaty of Waitangi), and ensuring cross-party support;
 - 5.2 ensuring that policy settings provide investment predictability, so as to help businesses and communities plan ahead by being clear about what the government's climate change goals are now;

- 5.3 being ambitious with respect to reducing New Zealand's gross emissions by not unduly relying on international emissions reductions to meet the government's targets, while retaining all options at this point;
- 5.4 creating enduring institutional arrangements for climate change and environmental governance, with decisions underpinned by strong data and evidence;

Net zero goal

- 6 noted that the Minister for Climate Change has asked officials to do further work on a greenhouse gas emissions reduction target for 2050 (including economic modelling and analysis);

Climate Change Commission and Interim Climate Change Committee

- 7 noted the intention to establish an independent Climate Change Commission in mid-2019 (subject to the Zero Carbon Bill legislative process);
- 8 noted the importance of progressing work on priority matters, such as the role of agriculture in climate change policy and transitioning to 100 percent renewable electricity, before the Climate Change Commission is established;
- 9 agreed to establish an Interim Climate Change Committee to prepare evidence and analysis on priority matters to be provided to the Climate Change Commission when it is established;
